

HOA AND COMMON INTEREST APPLICABILITY

Transaction 48292 · v1 · Page 1 of 2

APPLICABILITY STATEMENT

Property 77 Juniper Lane, Harborfield; seller Jamie Ellis. No HOA or common-interest development is reported in the supplied fictional single-family property record. No association manager, dues account, transfer application, or membership number is identified. A recorded utility easement is not by itself evidence of an association. This response should be compared with the title description before an association relationship is inferred.

DOCUMENT MATRIX — CONDITIONAL REQUEST

CC&Rs and bylaws	Not requested: no association identified
Budget and reserve information	Not applicable to reported ownership
Assessment and delinquency statement	No association account identified
Minutes and pending litigation	No governing association identified
Transfer fee and move rules	No fee entered
Insurance and structural reports	No association report represented as received

SELLER'S CONTINUATION — PRIOR WORK

During the first winter after purchase, wind-driven rain reached the interior sill of the rear bedroom window. A glazing contractor renewed the exterior seal in April 2021. Seller observed no recurrence during subsequent ordinary rain but did not open the wall cavity or obtain a mold assessment. In June 2023 a plumbing contractor replaced the kitchen faucet and flexible supply connectors; no relocation of a drain or supply line was included. The service invoices are identified in the repair index as R-04 and R-09. The seller does not possess drawings for the original construction and cannot identify concealed piping materials throughout the residence.

CHANGE IN APPLICABILITY

If later evidence identifies a common-interest development, replace this screen with a request to the responsible association for the applicable governing, financial, assessment, insurance, and transaction documents. Do not treat the not-requested rows as satisfied evidence for an association that is later discovered. Buyer receipt concerns the present seller response, not an independent legal determination about recorded restrictions. Private covenants may require review even where no dues-paying association is identified.

KNOWLEDGE LIMITS AND RECORDS DELIVERED

Responses concern the seller's actual recollection during occupancy and are not a representation that an unobserved condition cannot exist. A response of 'not known' is different from a negative test result. Roof surfaces, foundation cavities, underground lines, and areas behind stored belongings have not been opened for purposes of these responses. Service papers delivered with the packet are identified by date rather than adopted as the seller's independent expert opinion. Buyer may ask follow-up questions through the representatives and may employ qualified specialists within the investigation arrangements. Later knowledge of a material change shall be conveyed in a dated supplement identifying the earlier response affected.

RECEIPT AND ATTACHMENTS

The recipient is asked to compare the subject address on the cover with the property under contract before acknowledging receipt. Receipt does not signify that every question has been answered to the recipient's satisfaction or that any investigation right has been waived. Continuations referenced by a response form part of the delivered record; an unattached reference should be requested before relying on the response. Estimates of age or cost are identified as recollections unless supported by an invoice. Neither a checked response nor the absence of a comment determines insurability, permitted use, market value, or the condition of another component not addressed in that response.
